

MINISTER PLEHVE ASSASSINATED AT ST. PETERSBURG THIS MORNING

Hater of Jews With Coach- man and Others Meets a Tragic Death.

A Bomb Was Thrown at His Car- riage at Warsaw Station.

Despite the Confusion Which Followed the Man Who Threw the Bomb Was Immediately Put Under Arrest.—Plehve Was on Way to Make His Report to Emperor.

St. Petersburg, July 28.—M. Plehve, minister of the interior, was assassinated at Warsaw Station in this city, this morning by the explosion of a bomb. His coachman and several spectators were also killed.

Plehve had just arrived at the station when the bomb was exploded. The windows in the station were smashed by the explosion, the bridge was damaged and the pavement was torn up for a considerable distance.

Plehve was appointed to the office of minister of interior on April 18, 1902, and succeeded M. Sipiaguine, who had been assassinated a few days previously. Plehve has never let occasion pass without expressing his hatred for the Jews and as a result there has been many plots to take his life. Previously to his appointment as minister of interior, M. Plehve was secretary of state for Finland and ruled with an iron hand. It was while he held this post that he first gained the heartfelt hatred which has kept his life in constant danger during the last years of his life. In the past year or two whenever the nihilists in Russia had a scheme for assassination on hand it has been said that M. Plehve's name, next to the Czar's, led the list of those whom the anti-government forces wished to put out of the way.

Following are the details of the assassination of M. Plehve. Plehve was on his way to Petersburg about 10 o'clock today to make his report to the emperor, when his carriage was passing in front of the Hotel Devarsovic, close to the St. Petersburg terminus of the Warsaw Railroad. A man suddenly rushed out of a restaurant attached to the hotel and hurled a bomb at the minister's carriage. The minister and his coachman were killed on the spot. The carriage and horses which were drawing it, were shattered into atoms. The body of Plehve was terribly mutilated. His left arm and both legs were torn off. The bomb-thrower, despite the confusion, was immediately surrounded and arrested.

WIDESPREAD REVOLUTIONARY PLOT ON FOOT.

Geneva, July 28.—The Russian revolutionists here are jubilant over the death of M. Plehve. It is asserted there is a widespread revolutionary plot on foot, the most formidable since the assassination of Czar Alexander II. The blacklist includes all the governors of the Russian provinces and ministers. The Czar was not included in the list as he was regarded as weak, but amiable. Now, however, he too, has been added to the list.

PLEHVE'S ASSASSIN IS A JEW.

London, July 28.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Reuter Telegram company wires today that M. Plehve's assailant is a Jew, who refuses to give his name.

M. WITTE IS NOTIFIED.

Berlin, July 28.—M. Witte, the president of the Russian council of ministers, is here negotiating a commercial treaty with Germany. When your correspondent conveyed to him the news of M. Plehve's assassination, he was horror-stricken. He said: "It is appalling, but it is not surprising. The revolutionists have long marked Plehve as their victim. Every Russian minister accepts the risk of assassination as part of his official duties. Of course, the crime will not produce any political reforms, but on the contrary a more rigid repression of the subversive elements is inevitable."

The body guard of Russian detectives which has been watching M. Witte's hotel, have redoubled their precautions.

PLEHVE A JEW-HATER.

Berlin, July 28.—Prominent Jews here have received information of M. Plehve's last administration act, which was the perpetration of measures of relentless Jew-baiting. He decreed the suppression of four Hebrew newspapers, published in St. Petersburg, thus throwing out of employment 300 Jews, with 1200 others dependent on them. Not content with this, he ordered the Jews thus thrown out of work, and their families to be expelled from St. Petersburg and conveyed back to the pale. A deputation of white-haired Jews knelt before Plehve and besought mercy. A second deputation of weeping Jewish women also implored pity. Plehve is reported to have driven them off with harsh replies. The 1500 Jews thus ruined are said to be in a desperate mood.

THE EMPEROR TREMBLED.

Berlin, July 28.—Code dispatches received from St. Petersburg state that the Czar received news of Plehve's assassination at Peterhof. The emperor trembled and sank into a chair, overcome by the shock.

RULED LIKE A DESPOT.

St. Petersburg, July 28.—Perhaps the most serious charge ever made against Plehve was that he was to a great degree by his actions against the Jews responsible for the massacre of Jews at Kishineff some months ago. Since the war broke out, Plehve's power has been almost that of a despot, and his position so secure that little short of a revolution could dislodge him. He appointed the local governors and these, under his direction, became practically Czar's of their districts. He did not even hesitate to rebuke the emperor himself.

Plehve, who was 65 years of age, has been in public work for more than 40 years. His first prominent post was that of public prosecutor at Warsaw in the early seventies. Polish nationalism was at its height at the time and he threw himself into the work of downing this with that vigor which has always characterized his work. When the Czar was assassinated Plehve became more ardent than ever in his hatred of the nihilists and the next few years saw the reorganization of the secret police by him until it became the powerful organization it is today. In 1894 M. Plehve became under secretary in the department of the interior. Here his work of downing any kind of liberalism was more pronounced than ever. About three years ago he was appointed minister for Finland and here he added to his laurels as an active zealot in the work of exterminating everything opposed to the government. It was not till 1902 that he was appointed minister of the interior. One of his first acts was to assail the press and never in the history of Russia has newspaperdom been so thoroughly muzzled.

ANOTHER REPORT.

London, July 28.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Central News asserts that two bombs were thrown one from the motor car and the other from the restaurant. Twenty persons were wounded by broken glass. Three floors of the building adjoining the hotel were smashed to atoms. This report has it that the coachman was not killed but was seriously injured.

GARDNER HANGS

Munfordville, Ky., July 28.—Custer Gardner was hanged in the county jail yard here this morning for the murder of Esquire Osborne and his son, Dave Osborne. Gardner did not seem to be the least excited but he refused to climb up the steps to the scaffold. He was almost carried up, but after reaching the top was perfectly calm.

FOUR ARE DROWNED

Winnipeg, Man., July 28.—While four persons were attempting to wade across Old Man's river at MacLeod, N. W. T., today, all were swept from their feet and drowned. They are Nellie and Kate Higgins, aged 20 and 16 respectively; Eddie Higgins, aged 6, all members of the same family, and Mary Robinson, a friend.

Robbed of $650.

Mobile, Ala., July 28.—Two highwaymen held up and robbed E. L. Russell at Merrill, Miss., this morning. The amount secured was $650. The robbers were traced to this city by bloodhounds, where trace of them was lost.

FAITH IN THE WEST.

New York, July 28.—Senator Fred T. DuBois, of Idaho, referring to suggestions made by several Democrats during the meeting of the National committee that several of the Western States may be carried for the Democrats, says it is true that local conditions favor the Democrats. He refers to the Mormon question in Idaho and some other states, the labor troubles in Colorado and the railroad question in Washington, as rocks on which the Republicans will split.

BRYAN MAY ATTEND.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 28.—Wm. Jennings Bryan will be invited to attend the Taggart reception Tuesday night. He may come, as he is to lecture in the state on Thursday or Friday. Word was received last night that John Sharp Williams will accompany Taggart to Indianapolis. He will be one of the principal speakers.

HARRISON IS CONFIDENT.

Chicago, July 28.—Mayor Harrison believes that the Democratic ticket is going to win. Yesterday he showed great enthusiasm and predicted that the national candidates were going to be victorious. He believes that the state and county tickets are going to be swept to victory along with the tidal wave of national Democratic success.

LEADERS MEET WITH PARKER

CHAIRMAN MURPHY OF TAM-
MANY, ASSURES THE JUDGE SUPPORT.

National Committeemen Socially Visit
Esopus—Senator Hill and Leader
Murphy Clasp Hands.

Esopus, N. Y., July 28.—Members of the Democratic National committee made an informal call on Judge Alton B. Parker yesterday, and found him entertaining Leader Charles F. Murphy and others prominent in Tammany Hall. Former Senator David B. Hill and Mr. Murphy joined hands on the Rosemount veranda and others who have not been political friends for years put aside their differences and met on common ground.

Mr. Murphy and his colleagues, State Senator Victor J. Dowling and Judge Morgan J. O'Brien of New York, and Thomas P. Conway of Plattsburg, arrived first and were the last to go. Discussions of political questions, both National and State, were entered into by the visitors.

The coming of the National committee was heralded far and wide, but no announcement had been made of the proposed visit of the Tammany delegation. Several of the committeemen expressed surprise at finding the New York men at Rosemount, but Mr. Murphy made no effort to avoid meeting the Parker campaign managers. After a long and uninterrupted conversation with Judge Parker, Mr. Murphy and his party had luncheon with the candidate, after which the talk was continued until after the arrival of the National committee.

Every vehicle in Esopus was needed to convey the committeemen from the 2.06 o'clock train to Rosemount, and even then a second trip was necessary. Judge Parker welcomed his visitors on the veranda. Senator Hill was in Judge Parker's wagonette, which was first to arrive. When he saw Mr. Murphy, he strode toward him with outstretched hand and with a cordial "How are you, Murphy?" The greeting was hearty on both sides. Mr. Dowling joined them, and, as Judge Parker's attention was engaged in greeting other guests, the trio conversed for two or three minutes. Politics did not enter into the discussion, however. This was the only time Mr. Murphy and Mr. Hill were thrown together, except when they posed with others for a group photograph.

Judge Parker had met less than half of the members of the committee. As they arrived and were introduced he had a pleasant word for each, and from his talk it was evident that he possessed an intimate acquaintance with what each man was doing in his own State. Chairman Taggart talked with Judge Parker several times during the afternoon, and it is likely that he will be a frequent visitor at Rosemount in the next week.

Mr. Taggart said after the conversation that the candidate ought to be his own manager, as he showed a knowledge of everything that is needed to promote an energetic campaign.

In addition to the harmony meeting, which took place at Rosemount, there was a number of important developments, not the least of which was an expression from Charles F. Murphy to Mr. Taggart.

"I came here to meet Judge Parker," Mr. Murphy said, "and have a chat with him. I assured him that the statement I made right after the St. Louis convention, that Tammany Hall would support the ticket loyally, was not an idle one. I reassured him to-day that Tammany Hall will do all that lies in its power to roll up a big majority for him that will make the State Democratic this fall. I have seen Judge Parker and talked with him, and am, if possible, more impressed with him as a candidate than I was before."

"Everything has been agreeable to me. I am here in common with other Democrats throughout the country to assist in promoting Democratic harmony and success. Everything that has occurred has impressed me with the fact that there is nothing to prevent all Democrats making a successful canvass in the state and nation. New York City will give the greatest majority ever known."

HOPE Of Settling Strike Has Vanished

PICKETS WATCH EVERY MOVE OF THE PACKERS

More Strike Breakers Arrived in Chicago Thursday.

PRES. DONNELLY CONFIDENT

Another Jump In Meat Prices With Further Advances Predicted For Friday at Chicago.

Chicago, July 28.—The absolute refusal of the packers to confer with the strikers again puts at rest all hope of a settlement of the big strike.

The state board of arbitration, armed with authority from the unions to make concessions, sought the conference. They met representatives of the packers and were handed this typewritten statement:

"We had an agreement with Mr. Donnelly's organization and the allied trades, which they have failed to live up to, and under these circumstances we do not care to make any further agreements with them."

To provide against any possibility of trouble, the Chicago Junction Railway company this morning shut down its stock yards, the freight department, fifty of the company's handlers, having quit work Wednesday. From the packers' view point the situation this morning is reported as satisfactory. They gave out a table to show that their plants are about 50 per cent manned. Despite the general and stringent order against picketing, the strikers kept men about the centers of action watching closely every move made by the packers.

Swift & Company announced that strikers would be paid off today. This, the officials say, closes the company's dealings with the men.

Some of the freight handlers struck this morning when ordered to load some packing products. There is little danger of this strike being effective as most of the packing houses shipments are handled by the company's own men.

These are the first railroad men to go out. A strike of the switchmen would be serious.

Importation of strike breakers this morning aggregated 300, among them 16 butchers from Detroit, said to be skilled and union men.

President Donnelly still is confident of his position and claims that it is the high class skilled labor that is required profitably to operate the great packing plants. That labor, Donnelly says, is out to remain until the packers make concessions.

Another jump in meat prices came this morning and two cent advances are predicted for tomorrow.

TRIED TO KILL WARD.

Chicago, July 28.—An attempt to assassinate George P. Ward, a leading live stockman at the stock yards, was made shortly before noon by an unknown Pole. The attempt was unsuccessful, and the man was arrested. The affair caused great excitement at the yards, as the assailant was supposed to be a striker. An unknown Pole tried to assassinate Ward with a large knife but was frustrated. It is believed he is insane.

First Break in Strike.

Chicago, July 28.—(Bulletin)—All live stock handlers at the stock yards have gone back to work. There are 700 of them. This is the first great break in the strike. The men will handle live stock for the packers involved in the strike, as well as for the independent packers. General Manager Springer of the Union Stock Yards Company, announced at noon that the stock handlers who went out in sympathy with the striking butchers on Monday had returned. It is understood that the stock handlers having shown their sympathy by joining the strike, decided that they could not materially aid the union cause by remaining out long. This action will materially aid the packers in securing their supply of stock.

QUIET AT OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., July 28.—The strike situation is the quietest today since the walkout was ordered. Sheriff Powers this morning swore in forty deputies and sent them to the strike district armed only with clubs.

NORMAL AT KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City, Mo., July 28.—Excepting Cudaby and Schwarzschild and Sulzberger, which were more nearly union houses than any of their competitors here, the packers have about all the men they need.

PREACHER

Robbed of His Purse and Sixteen Hundred Dollars By Pickpockets
In Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, July 28.—Rev. L. M. Shinkle, of Five Mile, Ohio, was robbed of more than $1,600 by pickpockets yesterday afternoon. Seventy-five dollars was in currency and $1,400 in notes on the Sullivan County Bank.

Rev. Mr. Shinkle was at the Union Station waiting for a train when the robbery occurred. He was standing near the train sheds when a crowd surged against him. A second later he realized his pocketbook was gone. He remembered the appearance of one man that had posted him, captured the stranger and called the police. The man succeeded in convincing the officers that he was not a pickpocket.

Rev. Mr. Shinkle telegraphed to the president of the bank and ordered payment stopped on the notes. To then borrowed money from friends and concluded his journey.

FAST FIGHT

BETWEEN MCGOVERN AND NEAL
IN PHILADELPHIA.

Frisco and Brooklyn Boys Fought Six
Hard Rounds Last Night—Mc-Govern Badly Punished.

Philadelphia, July 28.—Frankie Neil of San Francisco, bantam champion of the world, clearly outfought Hughie McGovern of Brooklyn at the National A. C. here last night.

The fight throughout was the most vicious ever witnessed in this city between little men. There was scarcely a second during the six rounds that the boys were not in action.

At the close of the sixth round McGovern was almost out and was hanging on to Neil to avoid punishment. McGovern drew blood from the Californian's nose in the second round and opened a gash in his left cheek in the succeeding round.

Neil cut a gash in McGovern's left cheek in the fifth round and toward the close of the round McGovern was very shaky on his feet. Neil's seconds were Bob Brady, Johnny Loftus, Kid Howard and Tim Calahan, while Sam Harris, Danny Dougherty, Whitey Lester and Joe Humphreys looked after McGovern.

Both boys were under the required weight of 118 pounds.

ARRESTED

On a Serious Charge Preferred By William Gutridge—A. E. Harris Gets Hearing Friday.

Chief James Sheridan Thursday morning arrested A. E. Harris of East Newark, on a warrant sworn out by William Gutridge, ex-county commissioner, in which Gutridge charges Harris with obtaining money under false pretense.

Harris was taken to the city prison and will be given a hearing Friday morning.

In the affidavit for the warrant, Mr. Gutridge claims that through falsely making statements that he (Harris) was getting $24 from J. B. Jones, secured the signature of Gutridge to a promissory note for that amount. Gutridge claims that Harris said that he had a patent he intended to sell.

London, July 28.—(Bulletin)—Your correspondent is officially informed to-day that Foreign Minister Lord Lansdowne has received satisfactory assurances from Russia that full satisfaction will be given Great Britain in the matter of the steamer Knight Commander, which was sunk by the Vladivostok cruisers, on Sunday.

London, July 28.—Premier Balfour announced in the House of Commons today that the acute stage of the Red Sea incidents had passed and that the Russian volunteer vessels would be withdrawn.

Referring to the passage of the Dardanelles by the volunteer fleet as commercial vessels and their subsequent transformation into belligerent vessels, the premier said Great Britain took the strongest possible exception to that course, and "the Russian government met us in this matter. I will not say on the general principle, but with regard to this particular incident."

London, July 28.—The Tien Tsin correspondent of the Evening Star reports that Kuropatkin was wounded in the shoulder July 24. Another general was killed. The Russians according to the correspondent, lost 10,000.

London, July 28.—The Japanese embassy has a dispatch from Tokio containing a report by General Oku in which he states that the Japanese army, pursuing the enemy, advanced on July 25 to the north of Tashik-Kao. The Russians retreated to the northward. He adds that Tashik-Kao and New Kialan are ablaze.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—Russia will hear from the United States government within the next day or two in regard to her interference with American Oriental commerce.

While our House of Representatives had 236 lawyers in its membership of 357 (since increased to 386), the British House of Commons had but 129 lawyers in a total of 670 and the French Chamber 130 lawyers among 584 Deputies.

IN LAVINIA'S GARDEN

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Copyright, 1904, by Temple Bailey

Miss Lavinia's garden was a vegetable garden.

"The young folks can have the flowers," she said to the captain, who lived next door and kept a very shipshape little yard, "but give me something substantial. You can't eat flowers."

Now and then, when the captain handed Miss Lavinia a bunch of snap peas or a cluster of roses over the fence, he tried to argue the question.

"There's poetry in flowers, Miss Lavinia, and the language of love."

"Huh!" sniffed the little woman. "Who cares about the language of love at my age?" And the captain would go away very sad.

For years the captain had cared for Miss Lavinia in a sort of nautical fashion. She was what he called a ship's little craft, and in spite of her sharp tongue he lived near enough to see the tender acts that made her the blessed lady of the community. There was not a beggar nor a stray dog nor a tormented cat that would not find help or shelter at the little white cottage on top of the hill. All the women of the village came to Miss Lavinia with their woes, and the men came, too, to get sharp bits of advice and now and then a little loan of money without interest.

So for fifteen years the captain and Miss Lavinia had lived in adjoining cottages—he a widower longing for a wife and the comfort of a home, she a spinster, with buried hopes, living a life of helpfulness.

The captain's suit had not progressed, however, for after all their years of acquaintance he discovered no more tenderness in Miss Lavinia's glance than in the beginning, and he hesitated to declare himself, yet there had grown up between them a friendship that permitted him to offer her the fruits of his fishing expeditions, while in preserving and pickling time Miss Lavinia always filled certain jars and glasses to be set forth on the little table next door.

So things went on smoothly until one day the captain discovered that he had a rival.

Miss Lavinia was a devout church member, and when Deacon Werner lost

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN, CAPTAIN?" SHE ASKED.

his wife it was not long before people began to couple the names of Brother Werner and Sister Lavinia. For did not Brother Werner spend every Sunday evening at Sister Lavinia's, and did not Sister Lavinia set forth on the weekly supper table all the dainties of her skilled cooking?

The captain pondered on these things one Saturday afternoon as he watched Miss Lavinia in her garden culling lettuce and radishes and big red raspberries for the next day's feast. The captain knew just how that table would look. Now and then on high days and holidays he, too, had feasted at his neighbor's table. The lettuce would surround a dainty salad made from chickens of Miss Lavinia's own raising. The radishes would be cut like red roses and would garnish the cold meat; there would be crisp rusks and cream for the berries, thick and yellow. And, best of all, Miss Lavinia's face would illumine the feast, and her quiet wit would enliven it. The captain sighed. Then he rose and went to the fence and looked over at Miss Lavinia.

"Such devotion deserves a reward," he said bitterly as he watched her work.

Miss Lavinia looked up at him from under her sunbonnet.

"What do you mean, captain?" she asked as she pulled up a half dozen tender young onions and dropped them in her basket.

"Brother Werner is a lucky man," observed the captain, his accusing eyes on Miss Lavinia.

"The little woman blushed. Then she smoothed down her apron and looked self conscious. The tug at the captain's heart was painful. What would he do if he lost her—his little neighbor with the keen, blue eyes?"

"Captain," said Miss Lavinia, "I wish you would step over to my porch for a minute and have a little talk. Would you mind?"

Would he mind? It was the joy of his life to sit on that vine covered porch and be talked to by Miss Lavinia, for the captain was a rather silent man, while his neighbor was a woman of many words.

"I want your advice," said Miss Lavinia when the captain was so in the big chair with the rose flowers and cushions. "I don't know what to do."

The captain's heart dropped like lead. He fixed his eyes on the bit of blue sea visible from the porch as if he would draw strength from it. If Miss Lavinia wanted advice about the deacon he felt that the case was serious, for Miss Lavinia, always gave rather than asked advice.

"You see," she explained, "before Brother Werner's wife died I promised her that I would try and comfort the deacon, and I have done my best. But, captain, and here Miss Lavinia straightened her trim little figure and blushed, "captain, I feel awkward when I promised to comfort a man what it involved."

"No," said the captain heavily, "I don't suppose you did."

Miss Lavinia went on hurriedly. "It doesn't sound just right to say it out," she said, "but, captain, by all signs and feelings I am sure that Brother Werner wants to marry me."

"I don't doubt it," said the captain. "It's nature."

"And the trouble is," said Miss Lavinia, "that by all signs and feelings—I don't want to marry him."

"What?" The captain brought his eyes back from the ships and a wave of rapture rippled over his face.

"No, captain," repeated Miss Lavinia. "By all signs and feelings I don't want to marry Brother Werner."

The captain drew his chair closer. "And you want my advice?"

"Yes. How shall I keep him from asking me? I like Brother Werner, and for his wife's sake I don't want to hurt him. But I don't want him to ask me."

"Nothing easier," said the captain. "How?"

"Marry me," said the captain and hitched his chin a little nearer.

Miss Lavinia's face grew pink like a girl's, and for a moment she looked very young. Then she laughed a little tremulously.

"I never thought of that," she said.

"Think of it now," said the captain. He reached out and took her hands in his. "Will you, Lavinia?"

"Yes," said Miss Lavinia softly.

After a blissful moment the captain murmured, "You'll have to plant some flowers in your garden now."

"Why?"

"Because flowers are the language of love," said the captain tenderly.

Could Not Find the Place.

Mrs. Barrington, a methodical northern Michigan housekeeper whose routine was the same year in and year out, developed a cough one fall and was sent to Arizona for the winter, but she did not leave her household cares behind her. From time to time she wrote to various members of her family, telling them what to do on certain dates and admonishing them in this wise: "Remember, Mary, to clean the linen closet the first week in January." "Do not forget, Charles, to sprout the potatoes in the cellar the second week in February."

The winter brought with it an unprecedented amount of snow, but in spite of family letters Mrs. Barrington in Arizona was unable to realize the state of the weather at home. Toward the end of February the conscientious housekeeper wrote to her gardener, instructing him to be sure to plant the sweet peas along the back fence on the usual date, the first day of April.

John, the gardener, bought the sweet peas, but was unable to carry out the rest of Mrs. Barrington's instructions for a reason which he explained in the following letter to his mistress:

"Respected Madam: I have bought the peas, but I cannot plant them. There is so much snow that I cannot find the fence."

For the Cuckoo.

The aggressive man finished his story and regarded us with such a superior air that we trotted out the little anecdote about the cuckoo clock.

"Yes, sir," we concluded, "just as he shouted upstairs that it was 12 o'clock the cuckoo clock cuckooed three times, and the man didn't have to do a thing but stand there on the stairs and cuckoo nine more to make 12."

We laughed uproariously and congratulated ourselves that the traveler was effectually squelched.

"Well, go on," said he, with some impatience.

"On where?" we asked.

"On, with the story," he replied.

"Why, man," we expostulated, "that is the story. Don't you see? Just as he shouted upstairs—"

"Oh, rats," said the man. "Next morning, when the man was going to work, his wife said, 'Tom, don't forget to bring home a seedling powder.'"

"What for?" asked Thomas. "Why, for our cuckoo," said his wife. "I noticed that he had the hicoughs last night when he struck 12."

Missed Again.

The man from Boston was trying a series of newspaper jokes on his English friend who was engaged in developing a sense of humor.

"Now see what you make of this," said the Boston man.

"This train is always two minutes late," said the day passenger to the conductor.

"That's because you always sit in the rear car, sir," said the conductor. "The front of the train is on time."

The Englishman gnawed his mustache for a moment and began an appreciative roar.

"Why—aw—that's a mighty good joke, you know," he said in the midst of his laughter. "Of course—American trains are so long—you know—but never quite as long as that, after all."

BUTTERMILK.

Some people long for lemonade And some for fancy drinks And some for soda—with the aid Of sundry wicked winks. But when the sun is fierce and high, 'Tis then my fancy turns To buttermilk—as then I sigh For nectar from the churn.

Somewhere on earth there still must be A "spring house" deep and low, Half hid beneath a willow tree Whose boughs sweep to and fro, And whisper to the rills that gush Between the roots and fern To loiter in the shadowy dush Where stands the sweating churn.

A dipper hangs upon the wall To rob that soothing liquid— But, better, better yet than all, To loiter there in it myself! No victory has ever poured Through some one's lips Like buttermilk held in a gourd, Raised from the rosy churn!

Ah, can there be a finer thing? It's sweet as honey dew, The water rippling from the spring Is laughing back at you, While merrily it drips and drips Through water-recess and fern, You taste the tang upon your lips Of nectar from the churn.

Forgotten then are drafts of wine That all the senses ely, And you your happy soul resign To deep dr own breaths of joy, And he who does not know of this Has one glad truth to learn— That buttermilk is liquid bliss When ladled from the churn.

A certain literary woman, feeling herself under an obligation to a very eminent authoress and wishing to show her appreciation, bought a box of candy, meaning to present it to the novelist at the earliest opportunity. On the same shopping excursion she bought herself a box of tooth powder, the two purchases making packages of similar size and appearance. Then she sought out her benefactress.

"Have you a sweet tooth?" she inquired and presented one of the neatly wrapped purchases. The offering was accepted gracefully, and the donor departed, much gratified at the accomplishment of her act of recognition. When she got home she unwrapped her remaining package to try the new tooth powder. At an "at home" a young man came to the hostess, greeting her and apologizing for his lateness.

"Awfully glad to see you, Mr. B.," said the hostess. "So good of you to come. But where is your brother?"

"I am commissioned to tender his regrets. You see, we are so busy just now that it was impossible for both of us to get away, so we tossed up to see which of us should come."

"How nice! Such an original idea! And you won?"

"No," said the young man absently.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Source of Comfort.

"Certainly," answered the portly man. "I owe my present comfortable condition to a patent medicine."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; one which I invented and put on the market myself."—Washington Star.

SELECTIONS

THE WORLD'S GREAT PORTS

London Heads the List and New York Is in Second Place.

The recent report by the Antwerp bureau of statistics on foreign tonnage entered at the principal ports of the world having proved to be incomplete, and for the United States misleading, the Washington department of commerce and labor has issued a corrected statement on the same subject. It may be accepted as showing the tonnage (exclusive of coal) not included entered at the largest ports of the world—ports having a tonnage of over 1,000,000 tons—during the year 1902, with the exception of the United States ports, the figures of which are for the fiscal year closed June 30, 1903.

The figures for the United States and Great Britain are taken from the official publications of both countries, while the greater number of the remainder are taken in the annual reports of the United States consuls for 1902, but covering tonnage figures for 1902.

Port.	Tons entered.
London	10,179,922
New York	9,653,369

Cancer Discoveries.

Important discoveries in connection with cancer were announced at the recent annual meeting in London of the general committee of the cancer research fund. Distinguished experts briefly summed up their year's work as follows:

Civilization is not the cause of cancer, which pervades animal as well as human life and attacks all its subjects at relatively the same age and periods. It is not an infectious disease and is not transmissible from one species to another. A cancer cell can reacquire powers of self propagation.

Cancer is not caused by a parasite. The malarial is not on the increase.

Radium has been found to exercise no curative effect.

A serum has been discovered from which good results are hoped.

The first authentic cases of cancer in animals were minutely described by experiments which had been made on fish and wild mice.

The Hairy Man of Archangel.

From all parts of north Russia peasants are traveling on a pilgrimage to an extraordinary hermit, Pkopy Selebitsch, who is known as the hairy man of Archangel. Five years ago, in an excess of religious mania, he cut off all his fingers on his left hand. When he heard that the Russians had suffered misfortune in the far east he declared it was the result of their sins, which could be atoned only by a sacrifice offered to Mother Earth. At first he said he did not know the significance of this declaration. But on John the Baptist's day he represented that he had been commanded to plant himself in the earth and there remain until the unbelievers, meaning the Japanese, were beaten or until birch leaves sprouted from his fingerless hand. He has accordingly planted himself up to his knees in earth in his hut. There he now remains, with a granddaughter to look after him.

Oklahoma's Marksmen Best.

Three of the best marksmen in the United States navy, curiously enough, hail from far inland Oklahoma. One is C. W. Johnson, who made the world's record with the huge sixteen inch gun recently installed at Fort Wright, on Fisher's island, Long Island sound. J. W. Creitz of the new battleship Maine made eight shots in a minute with a six inch gun and hit the target eight times at 1,000 yards, the ship meantime going twelve knots an hour. Bart Barnes, a son of ex-Governor Barnes of Oklahoma, is now a first lieutenant in the navy, but previous to his promotion he made an excellent record at the target. He is now on duty at Panama.—Boston Transcript.

Tobacco Beats at Annapolis.

It is estimated that about 20 per cent of the young men who recently applied to enter the Naval academy have failed in the physical test, and the failure was largely due to the use of tobacco, resulting in an irregular beating of the heart. No days physicians speak of "the tobacco heart," a trouble caused by the excessive use of the weed. When a smoker develops into a "cigarette fiend," the services of a physician are necessary, for at this point is reached the heart may be permanently injured.—Baltimore Herald.

An Alluring Advertisement.

The following interesting advertisement is published in the Church Times of London:

"Lady is anxious to find a home or place for a girl, seventeen, utterly disobeident and vicious, but honest and strong, where her services will be given for training and care required."

"Combine" an Old Briticism.

"Combine" as a noun has been supposed to be an Americanism and of very modern date. Not long ago a British justice reproved counsel for using the term. A scholar's research has resulted in finding that "combine" in the sense of "combination" or "conspiracy" was used by one Folkingham in England in 1610.

HUNTING THE SHY COYOTE.

Drives of Western Ranchmen Often Result in Death of Scores.

There is a deal of coyote hunting in the west that is not attended by the niceties of the club hunt. Ever since the first pioneers pushed their way across the great plains the coyote has been an outlaw, looking for no mercy at the hand of man. His predatory habits have made the animal the bane of the ranchman, and his howl has made him the exasperation of the camper and the terror of the tenderfoot. Then, too, his habit of skulking just within rifle range has always made him a tantalizing target for the man with the rifle.

In spite of his unpopularity with all classes of men, however, the coyote has managed to hold his own better than any other animal in the great west. The antelope is swifter of foot mayhap, but not having the cunning of the coyote has been lured within rifle range until practically exterminated in many states. The ranchman's lust for fresh meat, the eastern tourist's desire for antlers and elk teeth and the native who slays for the market have depopulated Colorado and several other states of their best game. The bear, cougar and bobcat have felt the same blighting influence, but the coyote still figures in the sky line of the average western picture. Sometimes he is unwise enough to cut off poisoned carcasses of cattle, but this is seldom. Again he falls a victim to a coyote "drive," organized by ranchmen and participated in by townspeople, tenderfeet, newspaper correspondents and amateur photographers. These coyote "drives" are held annually, or oftener, in nearly all western communities where the prairie pest flourishes. An average "drive" participated in by several hundred individuals will yield sometimes twenty coyotes and sometimes none at all. A good deal depends on the wind, and more depends on the coyote's cunning and ability to sprint.—Minneapolis Journal.

Sightseeing.

When you take your vacation these days, what are you going to see? A young drug clerk of my acquaintance has just returned from a trip down the river by steamer, and he saw—drugs. He failed to mention to me the fact that he saw some of the finest views between the Alleghenies and the Rockies, the moonlight on the river does not seem to have attracted him and to have made him feel the supreme joy of just being alive, the grand hills and valleys of Kentucky and Ohio seem to have escaped his view, likewise the beauties of Louisville, its homes, its streets, shaded and cool even in the hottest days, but he saw the evil smelling drug stores.

"Why, they are selling—mentioning a popular patent medicine—for 62 cents in Louisville," he told me.

"That's interesting," I replied.

"What do you get for it here?"

"We get 75, and it's cut from $1 at that," he replied seriously.—Pittsburg Gazette.

Philadelphia Girls' Tan.

"There are more ways than one of acquiring a seashore tan," said the park guard as he pointed to a couple of girls reclining in the grass. They were lying on their backs in the scorching sun, minus hats and with sleeves rolled up above the elbows. At their side was a bowl, the contents of which they occasionally sprinkled over their faces and arms. "That's the way at home's idea of getting a vacation sunburn," went on the park guard. "You know, it's considered very smart among young girls to get as brown as gypsies, so they come out here, get burned almost to a crisp and then put up a bluff about having been away. The bowl! Oh, that's filled with salt water. They sprinkle it on themselves and let it dry, and that is supposed to help the game. For my part, I don't see why people want to get sunburned unless they have to."—Philadelphia Record.

Thermometer Noses.

Although the process of injecting paraffin under the skin was at first hailed with delight by persons desirous of remedying the defective shape of their noses, it has now been found to have its drawbacks, says the Petit Parisien. At the last meeting of the Academy of Medicine, M. Lagarde drew attention to some of these.

The least pressure, he stated, was fatal to the symmetry of the organs thus beautified. Paraffin is also very sensitive to heat, and a nose admirably modeled by the aid of the new process is as responsive to atmospheric changes as a thermometer.

More serious is the danger of blood poisoning caused by the absorption of particles of paraffin into the system. Blood poisoning sometimes ensues, and the results are frequently very grave.

Andrew Lang.

A London woman writes this description of Andrew Lang: "He struck me as being rather superciliously despondent. Perhaps he feels that he has not done justice to himself, also deep down in him is evidently the belief that mankind is divided into two categories—those who have been to Oxford and those who have not. He is very handsome, indeed striking, with his dark eyes and snowy hair. Mr. Lang looks languidly sorry for nine-tenths of the human race."

Lessons In Self Reliance

[Original.]

As a girl I had none of that feeling of independence which leads young women nowadays to strike out for themselves. I confess there was enough of the woman in me to induce me to look to a man for support. That man came along in the person of Dudley Dean, a strong willed fellow, thoroughly able to take care of himself—and another. When we met I was twenty, he thirty-two. My pliant nature seemed to be just the complement for his strong individuality. I found it delicious to have some one to make up my mind for me, and he delighted in taking the responsibility upon himself. One moonlight night in spring, when the air was fragrant with the odor of blossoms, I sank into his arms and promised to be his wife.

The next morning he said he wanted to have a serious talk with me. Life was a serious matter, and marriage the most serious part of life. That pliancy which had been so attractive to him, once we were married, might prove detrimental. A husband cannot always be turning aside to make decisions for his wife. During our engagement he would endeavor to lead me to the cultivation of self reliance.

This sounded well, and I chimed in with his wishes. One of the first lessons he gave me was this: He had engaged to take me to a concert one evening, and while I was waiting for him a messenger came with a note and two tickets to the concert. The note informed me that he had suddenly been called away on business, and I must rely on myself to secure an escort. Somehow I didn't

FRED S. CULLY.

The New York World aptly and forcibly states that the issues of the campaign are clearly and strongly between a personal government under Roosevelt or a constitutional government under Parker.

"The election of Judge Parker," says William Jennings Bryan, "instead of interfering with economical reform will open the way for a successful fight by ridding the country of imperialism, by removing the race issue and by substituting the spirit of peaceful progress for the military and warlike spirit engendered by the actions and utterances of President Roosevelt. Mr. Bryan hits the nail right on the head in this instance."

M. Roosevelt's principal claim to the title of "trust-buster" is due to the Northern Securities dissolution proceedings, originally instituted by the Governor of Minnesota. Incidentally it will be noted that Mr. Roosevelt's candidate for Governor, Elhu Root, appeared in court yesterday as counsel for the Securities Company—New York World.

It should also be noted that Governor Van Sant, who originally instituted the suit against the big railroad trust known as the Northern Securities Company, was turned down and defeated for re-nomination by the Minnesota Republicans at their State Convention.

It is certainly significant that the great independent newspapers of New York city are all in opposition to Roosevelt and giving support to Parker. After three years of experience with Roosevelt, the seven or eight independent papers of New York and Brooklyn, including the Herald, the Staats Zeitung, the Times the World, the Evening Post, and the Sun are opposing Roosevelt and favoring Judge Parker. Such a formidable journalistic force cannot fail to be effective on the campaign.

The country is not as prosperous as it should be or as it has recently been. There is abundant proof of this in the large reduction of forces which have been made by the railroads, whose action is always a sure indication of the condition of business generally.

Contrast of Candidates.

Judge Parker is all that Roosevelt isn't. He has had in years gone a close connection with politics, through all of which he bore a most honorable part, but for many years his position as judge has prevented active participation in party affairs so far as management is concerned. That he has maintained an interest in his party's success at all times is beyond question. Some opposed his nomination because he was supported by this man or that man, and not because he lacked any of the essential attributes of fitness. Indeed, even his opponents conceded his high character, his great ability and his possession of rugged, robust qualities which the people of this country appreciate.

He is not like Mr. Roosevelt. To begin with, he has a higher order of ability and is a man of calm judgment—is a man who thinks before he acts as well as afterward.

His conduct during the campaign waged for his nomination has been in all respects admirable. Knowing that there could be no reasonable doubt as to his views upon party issues he has not allowed himself to give out promiscuous interviews. From the time that he was first mentioned for the nomination to the time that the act of placing him at the head of the ticket was accomplished he had shown himself to be a self-respecting, modest American gentleman.

He is the sort of man in whose hands the country's affairs will be carefully conserved. There will be no international skyrobbing merely for the sake of attracting a sensational attention. The people are to be congratulated that such a splendid type of American citizen has been put before them for their suffrage and they can be doubly congratulated when they have brought about his election.

It is because Judge Parker is accepted as the antithesis of Theodore Roosevelt that he is being taken into favor by the American people, who want a constitutional chief magistrate instead of a personal dictator who poses as an imitator of the czar and the kaiser.

Theodore Roosevelt is unsafe, not only because he holds himself above the law when he is tempted by his inclinations or ambition to undertake any adventure promising glory but because he refuses to execute the laws impartially, suspending some and enforcing others, as interest or whim suggests.

Judge Parker would not be that kind of a president. All his habits of mind, his long career on the bench, his whole life forbid the thought that he could possibly assume the Roosevelt role, which is essentially that of a dictator.

And for a dictator this country is too big and free.

That is why the country would willingly be rid of the self-opinionated, high-handed and incurably egotistic Roosevelt, and live again under the constitution and the laws.

To Judge Parker the country turns in hope and confidence.

HAMILTON AFTER ONE HUNDRED YEARS

(Chicago Examiner.)

The observance a few days ago of the centennial of the death of Alexander Hamilton disclosed the extraordinary fact that none of the eulogies uttered or printed on that occasion contained any reference to anything Hamilton had done.

He was praised, for instance, in general terms, as a great military genius, but, as a matter of fact, he never planned a campaign, never led a charge, never figured in any battle, never distinguished himself on any field, and his whole achievement in the army of the revolution consisted of wearing a uniform and riding a horse. These he did very well; but how they can constitute a claim to military glory seems a hopeless mystery.

It was said that he was a great constructive statesman, but, as a matter of fact, the only thing he constructed was the United States Bank, which was clearly unconstitutional and which would have throttled the nation if the strong hand of Andrew Jackson had not beaten it to death.

He was called a great patriot, but, as a matter of fact, he was born an Englishman and remained an Englishman at heart to the day of his death.

He was called one of the fathers of the nation, but the only traces of his immensity are features in our system that are wholly unrepresentative, that

STATEMENT PENSIONS

IS ISSUED BY J. H. RICHARDSON ON "RAISED" NOTE.

Has Paper in Possession Showing Insurance Policy Was Not Given to Secure Payment of Note.

The announcement of James H. Richardson that a note held by the Newark Savings Bank had been "raised" was followed by a statement from Receiver W. G. Taafel to the effect that the note was raised legitimately and also by a similar statement from former Cashier James F. Lingafelter. Mr. Richardson has just written the following statement regarding the matter:

"I noticed in a paper Wednesday, over the signature of J. F. Lingafelter, making denial of the claim appearing in your paper, to the effect that a note for $1025.00 held by Mr. Lingafelter against me has been unlawfully and fraudulently changed, or rather the amount of the note raised.

"Mr. Lingafelter says that the note is all right for $1025.00 and a policy of insurance on the life of the late T. B. Holmes was delivered to him by me to secure the payment of this note for $1025.00 and he gives figures purporting to show how this note is made up for $1025.00.

"I take this method of emphatically denying all that Lingafelter says. It is not true that any note was made up by the figuring he gives.

"It is not true that T. B. Holmes' policy in the Royal Arcanum was ever delivered to Lingafelter by me, or any one else, to secure payment of one dollar, but for a purpose, as shown by evidence in black and white in my possession, showing a different purpose.

"And, finally, I wish to say that the face of the note for $1025.00 will show whether it has been changed or not. Besides, the future will develop the truth, whether the statement referred to by Lingafelter is untrue and unjust."

When Mr. Richardson brought the foregoing statement to The Advocate office Thursday morning he also presented a statement which reads as follows:

"Newark, O., April 13, 1904.
"Received of James H. Richardson a policy in the Royal Arcanum, No. 38597, for $3000 issued to Thomas B. Holmes and payable to Jas. H. Richardson same, being left with me for safe keeping."

TEN INNINGS

NEWARK WON BY BUNCHING HITS AT MT. VERNON.

The Idlewild Club Went to Zanesville
To Play the Moguls at Gant Park Today.

Mt. Vernon, O., July 28.—The Newark Idlewild team defeated the locals yesterday afternoon by bunching hits in the tenth inning. The game was played on wet grounds and several of the visitors' hits were due to this fact, the locals being unable to move fast. Shorty Schaffer joined the Mt. Vernon team yesterday and twirled a nice game. Doyle, the Idlewild catcher, became angry because he was called out on strikes and later he threw the ball with all the steam he could summon at the umpire. Fortunately Brown dodged in time to save himself. The score:

Idlewild . . . 0 0 0 2 1 0 0 0 1—2 8 1

Titus to Row at St. Louis.
The former champion oarsman of America, Constance S. Titus, is to attempt to regain his title at St. Louis, where the annual regatta of the N. A. A. O. will be held in the late summer. Titus is rowing in rare form, even faster, he says, than when he competed at the Henley regatta, England.
Titus recently gave some valuable advice to scullers. He said:
"The sliding seat gives beginners a deal of trouble and should be studied carefully."
"The slide toward the stern of the shell should begin at the very moment

C. S. TITUS, THE NOTED SCULLER.

You start to recover. The recover is, of course, the act of proceeding from the finish of a stroke to the position for taking another stroke. Naturally you start on the recover at the moment the oars are brought up out of the water.
"The seat should at all times slide with the body. Should you raise your body too much on the catch, which some people tend to do, you will be very apt to 'slip the slide,' a fault common to improperly trained watermen.
"Another fault in manipulating the slide is 'kicking' or 'shooting' the slide. This means to kick out with the legs too soon at the beginning of a stroke. In this case, instead of being well crowded up to the stretcher, with the knees bent almost to the limit, your body is part way back on its slide toward the bow with the knees half straightened."

George Hayt, Presiding Judge.
In the selection of George Hayt of Binghamton, N. Y., to act as presiding judge at all of the grand circuit meetings the stewards have made a choice that is approved not only by the owners and trainers, but by the public as well.

Mr. Hayt is a gentleman of vast experience in racing, and in many years' active connection with the turf he has established a reputation for honesty and knowledge of turf law second to none. He is of a judicial turn of mind, weighs all matters without prejudice and with deliberation and can be depended on to fill the difficult position of presiding judge with absolute impartiality and with fairness to all concerned.

Filling a new position in the trotting world, his acts will naturally be the object of much criticism during the first season, but those who know him best feel that he will admirably meet all the requirements of the most final. His appointment came in the nature of a surprise, for his name has hardly been mentioned by those busily engaged in assisting the stewards ever since it was announced that a professional presiding judge was to act at all of the grand circuit meetings. Notwithstanding this fact all will agree that the selection was a happy one.

THE RAILWAYS

TROUBLESOME FREIGHT WRECK
NEAR ZANESVILLE.

Ten Cars Derailed and a Large Amount of Track Torn Up—Local Railway Budget.

A troublesome freight wreck occurred on the B. & O. near E. Z. tower on the westbound siding near Zanesville Wednesday. The first section of No. 27 had taken the siding and was moving into position when a rail suddenly turned under one of the heavy cars. Before the train could be stopped ten cars were derailed and a large amount of track torn up.

The wreck train from Newark was called and the work of replacing the cars began. Several of the derailed cars were steel hoppers loaded with coal. In attempting to pull one of the heavily laden cars back on the track, the bull nose of the engine was pulled off and the locomotive had to be sent into the shops for repairs. The yard engine was secured, but the condition of the cars rendered them very difficult to handle and the siding was not cleared until late in the day. No one was injured in the accident and traffic was not interrupted by the locking of the siding.

Assistant Trammaster McDonald went down on the wreck train and superintended the work.

I tried to check or arrest it but failed until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Crayton's drugstore. I followed directions closely in using them and by the time they were all taken I had no more pain in my kidneys, nor have I had since."

WEDDINGS.

BOYD-ANKELE.

A happy wedding, in which two of Newark's best young people were most deeply interested, took place at the home of the brides' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ankele, 92 South Fifth street, on Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock. The contracting parties were Mr. Clarence Webb Boyd, son of Edward Boyd, Esq., and a popular clerk in the office of the master mechanic of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in this city, and Miss Margaret Ankele, the charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ankele. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. C. Schindler, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church of this city, in the presence only of the immediate family of the bride. After receiving hearty congratulations and partaking of a dainty bridal supper, the bride and groom left on the 7 o'clock interurban car for Zanesville, where they took B. & O. No. 888 for Washington, D. C., and other Eastern cities, after which they will return to Newark and go to housekeeping at 256 Summit street.

Hights' Imperial band, of which Mr. Crider is the conductor, was on hand at the station to greet the happy couple with sweet strains of music. The happy couple may have been on board, but if they were they were not visible to their Coshocton friends.—Coshocton Democrat and Standard.

As a matter of fact Mr. and Mrs. Crider were not about No. 20. They had expected to go East on No. 20 from Newark but were delayed until midnight. Mrs. Crider was formerly Miss Genevieve Rawlings.

THE WHIPPING OF CREAM.

How to Make a Light Fluffy Whip and a Heavy or Solid One.

Cream is usually skimmed from milk which has been standing for twelve hours. It is then comparatively thin. Set it aside for twenty-four hours or so longer and it will have perceptibly thickened. In many of our large cities cream is divided into three grades—thin cream, which is quite new; coffee cream, which is somewhat thicker, and heavy or "double" cream, which is very thick, the price varying according to its body or thickness. The first two grades of cream may be used for whipping where a light, fluffy whip is desired. Where a heavy or solid whip, such as is needed for bling meringues, adding to hot chocolate or to a Bavarian cream, is needed, the heavy or "double" cream is chosen.

To whip cream so as to produce a light froth, turn the cream into a bowl and stand the bowl in a pan of cold or iced water; if it seems quite thick pour in a little milk. Have ready also a sieve, over which is loosely laid a piece of cheesecloth—place this on a soup plate or in another bowl. The whip or churn used is a long tin cylinder pierced round the lower end with holes and containing a dasher, which may or may not be perforated. Place this in the cream so that the lower end touches the bottom of the bowl, slant it a little and work the dasher up and down with short, quick strokes. In a moment bubbles will begin to rise. Stir the first under; then, when the froth rises in a uniform manner, skim it off with a spoon and lay it in the covered sieve. Continue to do this until no more froth will rise, returning to the bowl the liquid which has drained from the whip.

To whip heavy cream the same whip or churn may be used, or the cream may be placed in a small tin churn with wire paddles and a crank; if very thick, an egg beater will be sufficient. Whip slowly but steadily, stirring down the froth as it rises, until the cream thickens uniformly to such an extent that it can almost be cut with a knife. With cream of such body it is very necessary that the whipping should not be continued for a stroke more than is necessary or the novice may find that she has changed her desired whip to a fine lump of butter. It is for this reason that care must always be taken to have the cream as thoroughly chilled as possible before whipping, and in summer it is usually desirable to stand the bowl in a pan of cracked ice or iced water.—Table Talk.

The Highland Chief

[Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.]

The big Highland Chief, bound from Liverpool to Australia, had got to the mouth of St. Helena when Paul Davis, her captain, became temporarily insane and drove all his crew except the cook and a boy to take to the long boat and sail away. Thus the brig was left without a crew, and that was the beginning of a long adventure.

On the next day there came a gale from the north, and the Chief went scudding away before it, but after a run of a hundred miles she was dismantled and left a wreck on the tumbling sea. The cook was the only one to count as a sailor and the boy of little help, but the wreckage was cut loose, and four days after the gale the light was riding high and dry and as tight as a bottle below. This was when she was sighted for the first time after the crew left. I was one of the crew of the English bark Hawthorne, homeward bound from India, and one morning we sighted the wreck and bore up for it.

Our mate was sent aboard, and from Captain Davis, who seemed all right in his head again, he got the particulars I have given you. Finding the hull sound and the cargo valuable, the mate offered to send men aboard to rig jury masts and sail her into port, but the captain would not allow it. Neither would he consent to be taken off the wreck. If the cook and the boy wanted to go he had no objection, but he had started on a voyage to Australia, and he would finish it or sink with his craft. The cook, who was a relative of the captain, decided to stay, but the boy had enough of it and was brought aboard of us. We lay by the wreck for three hours, hoping the pair left aboard would change their minds, but as they did not we sailed away.

It was two weeks before the Highland Chief was spoken again. In that time she had drifted 350 miles to the south. This time she was overhauled by the steamer Kongo Prince, India bound, and a boat was sent aboard. Captain Davis was found at dinner. He had weathered another gale and the hull was still sound. The steamer offered him a tow to Cape Town, but he rejected the offer.

The cook had tired of the situation and wished to be taken off, but the captain had made up his mind to stick and no arguments could dissuade him. The cook went aboard the steamer, and the captain was left alone on a groaning hulk in midocean. It was thirty-one days before she was hoarded again, and the wreck had drifted 500 miles, though not altogether to the south. She was in the highway of commerce, however, and had probably been passed by a score of craft which failed to make her out.

One morning she was sighted by the American tea ship Flying Scud, homeward bound, and, as usual, a boat was sent aboard. Captain Davis was in good health and the hulk as sound as a dollar. He admitted that he was a bit lonely, but was more determined than ever to stick to his craft. What he wanted were spars and a few men, and it so happened that the Scud could accommodate him with both. Then he raised the question of price and refused to pay what was asked, and he finally fell into a temper and ordered his callers back to their own craft. Although he had driven his own crew away by his threats he took it much to heart that they had gone, and there seemed to be a hope on his part that they would finally return. In his obstinacy he lost sight of the fact that any one else had rights in the case. While he owned the brig others owned the cargo, and as soon as his adventure was reported steps were taken to rescue him by force. In other words, any craft sighting him was authorized to tow the hulk into port and claim salvage on the cargo, which I believe was valued at about $200,000.

A week later the wreck was overhauled by the English bark Endeavor, which had received notice of the desire of the owners of the cargo. The captain of the Endeavor made up his mind to seize the wreck, rig jury masts and carry her into port, and a nice plum in the way of salvage he would have had had he succeeded. The Highland Chief was then below the latitude of the cape and drifting to the south. Captain Davis, calmly smoking a cigar and seeming to be clear of all anxiety, received the mate of the Endeavor in a hospitable manner, but soon let him understand that he did not intend to leave the wreck. If he could get spare spars at his own figure and if three or four men could be had without a bonus he would make shift to finish his voyage.

This was no more than he had said before, but the mate of the Endeavor believed that loneliness and anxiety had affected his mind to a considerable extent. While he was obstinate minded and had a pride of keeping his word, his whole fortune was invested in that hulk, and it was but natural he should want to save it. The captain of the Endeavor offered him fair terms in several directions, and it was only after Davis had rejected them that a move was made to carry the wreck by force.

The mate returned with four men to back him, and, suspecting their intentions, Captain Davis armed himself and ordered them off. When no attention was paid to his threats he opened fire and killed the mate and a common hand and wounded a third man. That ended any further attempt on the part of the Endeavor to take possession.

That was the last time man or wreck was seen by mortal eye. Men-of-war hunted for her for months and a hundred merchantmen kept a lookout, but she was never again reported.

Lighting the Signal

[Original.]

A horseman wearing a sombrero, an embroidered jacket and trousers dashed up to a camp in a palm grove.

"The president!" cried a sentry, bringing his musket to a precat. "Turn out the guard!"

The horseman, without noticing the sentry, the guard turned out in his honor or a group of officers who rose to salute him, threw himself to the ground, while the commandant of the outpost advanced to meet him.

"Major," said the president, "a plot has been discovered to depose me and make Rodriguez Sanchez dictator. Tonight when a signal fire is lighted on the top of the peak overlooking your camp the revolutionists are to close in on the city from different points, make me a prisoner or murder me and proclaim Sanchez. We are not ready, nor will we be till the troops ordered in from the south arrive. You are to prevent at all hazards the lighting of the signal. You are not to do this, revealing that the plot is discovered. Do you understand?"

"I do, your excellency."

"Remember, any failure on your part and you shall be shot tomorrow in the plaza."

"Yes, your excellency."

Louis Mendoza, the president, turned and galloped away. Major Jose Alaman as soon as it was dark posted his men about the peak as nearly in touch as possible. The moon was at the full, a great disadvantage to the revolutionists, and except when there were trees or brush any one ascending the sugar loaf peak would be noticed. Jose Alaman, having made disposition of his men, paced anxiously in front of his tent till midnight. Then it occurred to him to test his cordon by trying to slip through it. Stealing through a clump of thick bushes midway between two of his sentries, he penetrated the line. He was about to turn and change the disposition when a stone fell from above and rolled down nearly to where he stood. Looking up, he saw something disappearing behind a rock. He followed, again and again catching sight of a dim figure that, if it were a man, judging from its garments, must be a frocked priest. He chased it to a point near the crest, when suddenly he saw it stand out clearly on a rock directly above him. It was a woman. To reach her he must make a long detour, but she was within reach of a shot from his revolver.

"Halt there!" he commanded.

The figure stood still for a moment, then started on.

"Halt or I fire."

"Jose, would you kill your Juana?" asked a soft voice.

"What! You Juana Sanchez?"

"Yes, I."

"What are you doing here, sweetheart?"

"I am about to light a signal fire."

"The plot to make your father dictator has been discovered. Come to me, and I will try and get you away without discovery."

"I shall light the signal."

"Juana, I implore you, desist, or I shall have to take you to the city, where you will be shot. Mendoza will not spare you because you are a woman."

The girl without reply pushed on up the peak.

"Juana, dear heart, come back," called her lover. "It is death either to you or me."

She went on without reply till she reached the summit. There was but one thing for Jose to do to prevent her lighting the signal—to shoot her.

A match sputtered, she covering it from the wind with her hands. It went out, and she lighted another. This time he saw that a bonfire had been prepared for her. His revolver was in his hand cocked, but he was irresolute. The second match went out. There was one more chance for him to save his life by taking hers. Again he heard a scratch. This time he raised his weapon. The match blazed out, lighting up her face. He threw his revolver on the ground. She touched the match to a bit of paper. The signal was ablaze.

Jose descended the peak and called his men to a rally on the center, thus giving the signal lighter an opportunity to make her descent unobserved, then waited in his camp for the doom that had been promised him in case of failure. It was not long before a hundred horsemen dashed up, seized him, placed him in their center and rode away with him. He was taken to the city, but had no sooner entered than the gates were in possession of the revolutionists. His guard carried him to the plaza, where the president was marshaling his forces to resist the attack. As soon as he saw Jose Alaman his eye was ablaze with fury.

"Stupid! Incompetent! The task I gave you was simple. Why did you let the fellow slip through your lines?"

"It was not a man, but a woman. I saw her light the signal and could have shot her before she did so."

"And why didn't you?"

"Because I preferred to die in her place."

"That you shall do at once."

Mendoza called for a platoon, which was drawn up in the plaza, and Alaman was placed before it. But the order to fire was never given. The revolutionists burst into the plaza, shot down most of the firing party and made Mendoza and Jose Alaman prisoners.

That afternoon the door to Alaman's cell was thrown open, and Dona Juana fell into his arms.

It was Louis Mendoza instead of Jose Alaman who was shot in the plaza. Central American republics find it inconvenient to have two presidents living.

MEN ARE POWERLESS

To Fight Against Disease Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause.

To treat Dandruff, and Falling Hair, with irritants or oils on which a parasitic germ will prosper, is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising.

You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble.

You must kill the Dandruff Germ. Newbro's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing.

When the germ is removed, the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty.

"Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

C. T. Bricker, Special Agent.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Witch Grass.
This is a terrible weed to eradicate either from the field or the garden. It spreads by means of underground stems called root stocks, says American Cultivator. These run along below the reach of the mowing machine or of grazing animals and often too deep to be disturbed by surface cultivation. They produce buds at their numerous scaly nodes, and these buds develop in new plants in exactly the same manner as branches are produced above ground. The root stocks of couch grass will sometimes grow to a length of ten to fifteen feet in one season, furnishing this weed with a means of rapid distribution and propagation, a character making it most pernicious in cultivated land. The only way entirely to get rid of it is by forking the ground over carefully and picking it out piece by piece. Even the smallest bit left in the ground will start into growth.

Covering the Silo.
Various ways have been tried of covering the silage after the silo was filled to prevent the spoiling of the silage on top, but it has been found that nothing is better or less expensive than to put on water enough to thoroughly wet the top of the silage and have enough so that it runs down between the silage and the sides of the silo. Many avoid all loss from damage on top by beginning to feed immediately after filling, thus giving it no time to damage. The feeding should always be done from the top, taking about two inches from the entire top each day. If the feeding is done too slowly, and part of the surface is left exposed to the air for two or three or more days, then the stock will have partially damaged silage all the time. —C. P. Goodrich Before Wisconsin Farmers' Institute.

Grass In the Orchard.
Horticulturists and fruit growers have long known that grasses are injurious to young apple trees, but it seems that they were wrong in attributing the injury to interference with the air, the water and the food supply of the trees. Carefully conducted experiments and observation at the Woburn experimental fruit farm in England have shown, however, that there is some direct or indirect product of grass growth that has an active poisonous effect on the roots of the trees. It is also suggested that the so called exhaustion of the soil by certain plants, preventing the subsequent growth of other plants in the same ground, may be due really to some poisonous product left by the first plants.

Developing the Boar.
F. D. Spaulding at a meeting of Kansas swine breeders said: "At weaning time the boar pigs should be separated from the gilts and if possible put into a pasture with plenty of water, shade and grass. This pasture should be away from any other lot or pasture where other hogs run. It would be better to have all the pigs in one lot than to have them in adjoining pastures. By being together they become acquainted, but if separated by a fence they will fight through it, become restless, stop eating and go to fretting or rooting. When they get to that state the only thing to do is to put them into a small pen, each one separate from others, where they cannot see or hear other hogs."

Cowpeas For the Soil.
The plan of sowing cowpeas to occupy the soil after harvesting fall wheat or oats is as good now as ever, says Rural New Yorker. With a favorable season the cowpeas make a large growth and can be plowed under in time for another crop of grain or grass seeding. The soil is left in much better shape than it would be if left in stubble and weeds. The trouble about the plan this year is the difficulty in obtaining cowpea seed. There seems to be little if any left in the country. We are thinking of using white beans in place of the peas.

Profitable Poultry Breeds.
In answer to a question from a reader as to which is the best all around breed of chickens for laying and market the Poultry Advocate says: "The general purpose breeds are the Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds. If you handle them properly you will certainly be pleased with any one of them. The Plymouth Rocks stand at the head as a fancier's fowl, with the Wyandottes a close second. It does not matter which variety of these breeds you choose, as that is only a matter of feathers."

Clearing Up Brush Land.
The use of Argona goats in clearing up the cut over lands in northern Michigan has been tried now for several years and apparently with satisfactory results to those who have invested in them. The lands have been lumbered, the pine cut out and then left to grow up into brush. Upon these lands the Argona has proved a very efficient aid in clearing them of brush and putting them in shape for cultivation or to grow into grass. Neither sheep nor cattle would do this work as well as the Argona.

Pointers on Hogs.
A little oil added to the slop increases its value, and especially where no corn is fed.

To secure a rapid growth the pigs must be born with as much power as possible and water with it.

While it takes time to breed up a herd, it is a sure way to accomplish a good one.

Breed the sows just as long as breeding them is profitable. It is unwise to slaughter a good brood sow.

I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me, though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as general debility. Only 50c. Satisfac-

MAYOR'S VETO OF THE COUNCIL'S RESOLUTION

Accompanied by a Recommendation for Carrying Out the Plan for City Ownership by Building Its Own Water System.

At the last meeting of the City Council the following resolution, providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate the condition of the present water works system in the city of Newark, and for the employment of a hydraulic engineer to assist in the examination, was introduced and passed by the council:

"Whereas, the Newark, O., Water company has proposed to sell its water works system to the city of Newark,
now therefore be it

Resolved, by the City Council of the City of Newark, O., that a committee be appointed to investigate the condition of the present water plant, said committee to have authority to employ Mr. L. E. Chapin or some other competent hydraulic engineer, to assist in such examination and to report to the City Council."

Mayor Crilly has vetoed the resolution, and has addressed a communication to the council, giving his reasons therefor, which is on file in the office of the Clerk of the Council, and which is as follows:

"I herewith return 'Resolution by Miller, to investigate the condition of the present water plant, etc.,' not approved. My objections to the resolutions are:

"First—that it is a resolution involving the expenditure of money, and was only read once when it should have been read three times, or rules suspended by a three-fourths vote which was not done.

"Second—I do not approve of the city being put to a large expense to investigate the present water plant.
The Mr. Chapin mentioned in the resolution will charge $50 for the first day and $25 each additional day and his expenses. The members of the committee (how many members there will be on the committee, the resolution does not state) will each have to be paid a liberal price per day and their expenses, if competent men are appointed therefor, and to make a thorough examination of the plant will take a long time. And what will be found that the members of the council do not now know? Nothing. There is some real estate but the City does not need that, as it already owns all the real estate it needs for a water works plant. There are several miles of iron pipe in the ground which has been there nearly twenty years and most of it is worthless. This was demonstrated at the Powers-Miller fire and again at the fire at the Wehrle works, when the pressure was so light that the water simply ran out of the hose, and had no power. The water company did not dare to put on any more pressure for fear of bursting their old rotten pipes, leaving the city at the mercy of the flames.

And there is a pumping station with pumps nearly twenty years old and very much worn, so much so that when they wanted to clean their wells a short time ago, they hired a six-inch pump from one of the contractors of this city and with a traction engine to furnish the power, cleaned out their wells which their own pumps could not do. There is also a reservoir very good so far as it goes, but it is entirely too small for this city the next twenty years to come, whatever may have been thought of its capacity in the past.

"Therefore I respectfully recommend Council to let the Water Company make their own investigations at their own expense and that the city council proceed with the erection of a Municipal Water Works as rapidly as possible. Respectfully submitted,
ANDREW J. CRILLY, Mayor.

NEWARK CAMP GROUND

Adjutant General Critchfield Declares it Unfit for Purposes of O. N. G.—Wants to Lease Maneuver Site in Hocking Valley—May Locate Hospital Here.

Columbus, O., July 28.—There is a movement afoot to locate the proposed new state hospital for the insane on the state camp ground of the Ohio National Guard located at Newark. The plan contemplates the abandonment of the camp ground for National Guard purposes and a supplemental part of the general plan is to have the federal government take a lease for the benefit of the O. N. G. on a vast acreage of coal lands in the Hocking valley. Adjutant General A. B. Critchfield is in accord with the movement.

"The camp grounds at Newark are totally unfit for the purposes of the National Guard," said that official.
"Conditions are now totally different from those which prevailed when the state accepted the gift of the city of Newark of these grounds. All that can be done at the Newark grounds is to drill the men and this we can do in our armories. What present conditions demand is maneuver grounds, where each year the Guard may be put through just such drills as are to be had at the Athens county maneuvers next month. The maneuver is an officers' school and that is what is now most needed. The enlisted men know how to obey orders, and what is needed is a staff of officers competent to give the correct orders."

AT PISTOL'S POINT

Son of John A. Chilcote Was Forced to Give Horse And Buggy to an Unknown Man Who Drove Away--Horse Was Later Recovered.

While Jesse Chilcote, son of John A.
Chilcote, city agent of the Adams Express Company, was driving along East Main street, near the Children's Home, Thursday morning, an unknown man stepped into the center of the street and pointing a gun at the boy told him to get out of the buggy and turn the reins over to him.

With a gun staring him in the face,
young Chilcote did as he was ordered and when last seen the man was driving in the direction of Brownsville.

As soon as he could reach a telephone the boy notified his father who started in pursuit of the thief.
While driving several miles southeast of the city Mr. Chilcote came across the horse which had been abandoned, but the highwayman could not be found.
Chief Sheridan with Officers Carroll and Zergiebel are scouring that section of the country for a trace of the thief.
